BOOK REVIEWS.

All book reviews are by the Editor-in-Chief unless otherwise expressly stated.

Cases on Business Law.—By William Everett Britton, Professor of Law at Indiana University, and Ralph Stanley Bauer, Assistant Professor of Business Law, of the University of Illinois. St. Paul. West Publishing Company. 1922. Price $5.00.

Of the many books upon case law this, in our judgment, is one of the best we have seen, not only in the method of selection of cases, but in the preparation, and is modern in its selection without neglecting the older cases of great importance. Probably one of the most valuable portions of the book is the introductions of each branch of the subject, which are concise and clear and give the student an opportunity to review the law upon which the cases bear—a most important feature. There is a valuable treatise and selection of cases under the Negotiable Instruments Law. We have been very much pleased with this book, which, while primarily intended for the use of students in schools of law, possesses really as much value to the practitioner as to the student. The authors modestly claim that it is designed for use of students in schools of commerce and business administration but we believe it has a much wider value.

History of the University of Virginia 1819-1919.—By Philip Alexander Bruce, LL.B., LL.D., Author of the Economic, Institutional and Social Histories of Virginia in the Seventeenth Century, Etc., Etc Centennial Edition, Volume 5. New York. The MacMillan Company. 1922.

With this volume Dr. Bruce finishes his monumental work giving the history of the great University of Virginia, and whilst not strictly a legal publication we cannot forbear commending this work to the members of the profession who have been fortunate enough to have attended the University of Virginia. The work is not only a history but a very entertaining and interesting series of volumes. Written in an exceedingly pleasant and easy style, it makes most delightful reading and its importance to all future historians cannot be overestimated. We desire to congratulate the University and its alumni, as well as Dr. Bruce, upon the completion of this work, and we believe that those who are fortunate enough to possess it will never regret it.
